

I have been waiting for the Seattle, WA traffic channel to go live on my XM radio since I first hear about it. If the radio did a better job at keeping me informed maybe I would mind so much - but when I can sit parked on the interstate for 20 minutes before the local radio station bothers to mention all the wrecks it is a little useless. Satellite radio is an awesome technology, just like satellite television there are sure to be people who are upset by it though. Companies that can't keep up with innovation always try to stifle it. Don't let this happen! Please allow the XM radio network to move forward with their traffic and weather channels!
